

PILOT STUDY: UNDERSTANDING SAUDI COLLEGE STUDENT-EMPLOYER MATCHES AND PREFERENCES

Abstract

This pilot study will work with local Saudi professors, students, employers, and relevant organizations in order to collect survey and interview data to understand how both male and female Saudi college students think about their investments in college education and future career plans, as well as how both local and foreign employers view potential Saudi student hires.

Expected Impact

Develop relationships with policy partners in preparation for a future project focusing on improving matching between Saudi students and hiring managers.

PRINCIPAL INVESTIGATORS

- University of Chicago
Alessandra L Gonzalez

POLICY PARTNERS

- HRDF

HARVARD Kennedy School
Evidence for Policy Design

Ministry of Labor and Social Development
Kingdom of Saudi Arabia

